

BOOK REVIEWER GUIDELINES

Thank you for agreeing to write a book review for IJURR. Below are our guidelines for producing the review. Generally, we appreciate your thoughts, criticisms and commentaries, of course. But we'd like to urge you also to (more or less) stick to a format that introduces the book in its wider context of relevance, then summarizes its main arguments and finally addresses your own commentary. Of course all this may be obvious to you; our experience is that it does happen that reviewers skip the first two steps. So thank you for keeping this in mind while writing!

Length

Owing to pressure of space, please keep to the word length requested. Unless stated otherwise, this is 800 to max. 1,000 words for single reviews and max. 1,500 words for longer review pieces of multiple books. Over-long reviews will be shortened by the review editor.

Format

- Please type the review double-spaced.
- At the head of the review, please give title and publication details as follows:
Yang, Mayfair M-H. 1999 (ed.), Spaces of their own: women's public sphere in transnational China. Minnesota, MN: University of Minnesota Press.
- At the end of the review, please give your name and your institutional affiliation (if any).
- Quotations should be page referenced, e.g (p. 8), and if three lines or more should be indented and single-spaced.
- Please note that references to other books and articles as well as footnotes should be avoided completely.

Submission

You can submit the review by e-mail attachment (in Word) to: ijurrsow@hu-berlin.de

Possible revisions and publication approval

A groundbreaking forum for intellectual debate, IJURR is at the forefront of urban and regional research. With a cutting-edge approach to linking theoretical development and empirical research, and a consistent demand for quality, IJURR encompasses key material from an unparalleled range of critical, comparative and geographical perspectives. Embracing a multidisciplinary approach to the field, IJURR is essential reading for social scientists with a concern for the complex, changing roles and futures of cities and regions.

It is essential that submitted reviews are in line with these aims and scope of IJURR. Hence, revisions may be requested and publication will be subject to approval by the reviews editor.

Thanks, in advance, for your contribution. I very much look forward to receiving your review.
