

Journal articles:

- Pineda-Zumaran, J. (2016). Spatial data usage, spatial thinking and spatial knowledge-generation: the case of planning practitioners in Arequipa, Peru. Planning, Practice and Research, 31(3), p. 270-291. <http://www.tandfonline.com/doi/abs/10.1080/02697459.2016.1158460>
- Pineda-Zumaran, J. (2016). Learning and knowledge-generation in local decision-making in the South: the case of urban infrastructure provision in Arequipa, Peru. Journal of Planning Education and Research, 36(1), p. 60-75. <http://jpe.sagepub.com/content/36/1/60.short>

Conferences where I presented my work recently:

- “Bridging sustainability and liveability through regulations and design: a multi-scalar analysis of residential streets in Arequipa (Peru)”. Paper presented at the World Planning Schools Conference, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. July 2016.
- “Potential barriers for the implementation of the HABITAT III Agenda: the conflicting thinking of the planning approach to formal and informal urbanization in Peru”. Paper presented at the Latin American Studies Association Annual Congress, New York, United States. May 2016.
- “Bridging policy, regulations and design: a multi-scalar analysis of the Peruvian housing policy”. Paper presented at the International Symposium CLACSO/OLA, New York, United States. May 2016.
- “Some implications and ethical dilemmas of the approach to planning education in Peru: an analysis of the thinking and action of planning practitioners”. Paper presented at the Annual European Schools of Planning Congress, Prague, Czech Republic. July 2015.
- “The thinking on urban sustainable development issues of Peruvian planning practitioners: origins and implications”. Paper presented at the ICLEI World Congress, 4th International Urban Research Symposium, Seoul, South Korea. April 2015.